Interview Questions and Responses for David Bronson

1. How would you describe yourself to someone who does not know you?

I would describe myself as a hardworking and honest man who enjoys helping others.

2. What are the most important things in your life?

Family is the most important thing in my life. I also value financial success because it gives me the ability to help others. One of the greatest joys in my life is seeing my family become successful and accomplish their own goals.

3. What hobbies or activities do you enjoy the most?

I enjoy going to the lake, boating, and traveling. I especially like visiting destinations I have never been to before and experiencing something new for the first time.

4. How did you first become interested in those hobbies?

When I was a teenager, going to the lake or the beach brought me a lot of joy. It felt like an escape from everyday life and gave me a chance to relax and have fun. I have always enjoyed being outdoors, seeing nature, and appreciating everything it has to offer.

5. What is something you are especially proud of accomplishing?

Some of my greatest accomplishments come from seeing the success of people I have tried to advise or help. When someone follows advice, I have given and I see positive results in their life, it makes me proud. I also had a goal of becoming a property owner and becoming financially free from debt. I am proud that those goals have finally come to fruition.

6. What kind of work have you done, and what part of your career has been most meaningful to you?

I have worked in different areas throughout my career, including manufacturing and management. The career I enjoyed the most was my time at IBM. I was challenged while working in industrial engineering and had the opportunity to take an empty building and help transform it into a successful production operation.

7. What is one life experience that has had a strong influence on you?

Meeting Bill Devore had a strong influence on my life, especially in my pursuit of owning property. He became a sounding board for me when I first started as a realtor, and I gained valuable insight from him about investing in properties with strong earning potential. He has also remained a best friend and confidant.

8. What do you enjoy doing when you have free time?

I enjoy almost anything that involves nature. It can be something as simple as watching the breeze move a leaf or going for a walk. I like being outdoors and taking the time to notice the nature around us that we sometimes take for granted.

9. Are there any places, trips, traditions, or activities that are especially meaningful to you?

I enjoy traveling to foreign countries and visiting places I have never been before. We have traveled to Mexico and have also taken a cruise to Alaska. My favorite holiday tradition is Thanksgiving because I enjoy having everyone together and spending time as a family.

10. What goals do you still have for the future?

My goal is to continue building wealth and financial comfort for my family. Making sure they have a secure future, even after I am gone, is one of my most important goals.

11. What is something people might be surprised to learn about you?

People might be surprised to learn that I am uncomfortable with enclosed spaces and heights. I also value being well-rested and having periods of complete silence. Quiet time helps me relax and disconnect from the demands of the workweek.

12. What would you want someone to understand about you after visiting a website about your life?

I would want people to understand how important my family and friends are to me and how much I value creating a secure future for my family. I often put others before myself because seeing the people I care about succeed is very important to me.

About David Bronson

David Bronson describes himself as hardworking, honest, and someone who enjoys helping others. Family is one of the most important parts of his life, and much of what he works toward is centered around creating stability and opportunities for the people he cares about. For David, success is not only measured by his own accomplishments. He also finds a great deal of satisfaction in seeing others succeed, especially when he has been able to offer advice or support along the way.

Throughout his career, David has worked in several different areas, including manufacturing, management, industrial engineering, and real estate. One of the most meaningful parts of his career was his time at IBM. While working in industrial engineering, he was challenged with helping turn an empty building into a successful production operation. The experience gave him the opportunity to use problem-solving, planning, and leadership skills in a way that produced visible results.

Real estate and property ownership have also played an important role in David's life. His friend and mentor, Bill Devore, provided guidance when David first became involved in real estate and investing. Over time, David worked toward his goals of owning property and becoming financially free from debt. Reaching those goals is something he is especially proud of.

Outside of work, David enjoys spending time outdoors. Going to the lake, boating, walking, and simply observing nature give him an opportunity to relax and step away from everyday responsibilities. His love of the outdoors began when he was a teenager and spent time at the lake and beach. He also enjoys traveling and experiencing new places, including trips to Mexico and Alaska.

At the center of David's story is his commitment to family. One of his biggest goals is to continue creating financial security for his family while also enjoying the experiences and relationships that make life meaningful.
